

Clark Howes strengthens its Global Outsourcing and Corporate Assurance Offerings with a New London Office and rebrands as The Clark Howes Group

Clark Howes continues to strengthen its service offering to international and corporate clients by opening a new London office in Adam Street, (just off The Strand), and rebranding from Clark Howes Accountants to The Clark Howes Group.

“We’ve been highly successful in the global outsourcing, corporate assurance and auditing markets for quite a while now,” said Rodger French, Director The Clark Howes Group. “However, we felt that we could improve our position further by offering our overseas and London-based clients more local support through the opening of an office in central London. At the same time, we felt that our service offering now extended so far beyond traditional accounting that rebranding as The Clark Howes Group made sense.”

The Clark Howes Group offers a comprehensive range of services for companies of all sizes and nationalities in the business-2-business sector including AIM and Plus market floatation’s, audit and assurance, global outsourcing, mergers and acquisitions, due diligence, transfer pricing as well as financial accounts and tax management, payroll, credit control, and bookkeeping. Non-financial services include the establishing of UK subsidiaries, banking facilities, HR, offices and premises, vehicles and legal support.

“With such a broad and complete offering we are pleased to be seen as a one stop shop by our clients,” said Diane Prestland, Head of Global Outsourcing, The Clark Howes Group. “We can now offer clients a prestigious London address for the use of their UK subsidiary to help them get started in the UK and European marketplace. First impressions count for a lot in business and a central London address makes a very good impression indeed.”
